

Doreen Larimer

This quarter, we highlight Doreen Larimer, who has thirty-eight years of experience as a title abstractor and researcher in addition to being a longtime SCHS member and frequent visitor to the Reading Room. Doreen's professional knowledge, along with her understanding of the society's vast collections, make her a natural when it comes to manuscript description. During her time with the society, she has completed detailed descriptions of the McCrady Plat Collection, which holds over nine hundred plats depicting lowcountry sites. Doreen is currently creating an inventory and rehousing thousands of property records in the Simons, Siegling, and Cappelmann Legal Collection, which will be an invaluable resource for historic preservation students and her fellow property researchers when it is available.

When she's not donating her time to the archives or conducting property research, Doreen enjoys gardening, visiting the many historic sites in the lowcountry, and traveling the globe with her husband. The archives staff truly enjoys working with Doreen and appreciates her continued support.

The architecture and atmosphere of the SCHS Museum in the National Historic Landmark Fireproof Building will elevate any event. Centrally located in the heart of historic Charleston, our event space has capacity for up to 170 guests and features modern amenities such as an updated staging kitchen and the latest telecommunications technology. Fall 2020 dates are available! To discuss availability on your desired date, contact us at (843) 723-3225, ext. 122, or events@schsonline.org.
